NOT BURGLAR BUT RAWN'S OWN HAND HELD THE PISTOL

Ball That Killed Monon President Fits Revolver He Was Holding.

Chicago Police Give Up The Hunt.

FAMILY HINDERS EXAMINATION

Chicago, July 21.—Police investigating the shooting of Ira C. Rawn, president of the Monon, is ended, so far as the Chicago police are concerned, after yesterday's work. Assistant Chief Schuetzler and the detectives said they are through with the case, as they rejected all theories that Rawn was killed by a burglar.

Police concluded Rawn committed suicide.

The attitude of the family, police say, in hampering an investigation, helped them to reach this conclusion. The family insist he was killed by a burglar. Two shots were fired. Police say no trace of a second bullet is found. They say the bullet which killed Rawn fits his revolver from which a shot had been fired. Supposed blood on the sidewalk proved to be red paint. Rawn was facing an investigation in the Illinois Central repair yards, aggregating over a million, perpetrated while he was vice president of the road, though he was not implicated in the frauds.

Coroner Hoffman declares it impossible for the bullet, which ended Rawn's life, to have been fired from an angle on which is based the burglar theory. On Tuesday Rawn confided to a friend that burglars had attempted to enter his house the night before and was driven away.

When the police arrived the family declared there was nothing to investigate and dismissed them. Rawn's business associates say nothing in his business affairs caused him to commit Rawn's son-in-law says it is impossible to be anything but murder and asserts that suicide is absurd.

Recruits Are Wanted.

Instructions have been received at the Paducah army recruiting station by Sergeants C. A. Blake and Joseph Kresky from the war department at Washington, D. C., to accept all desirable white applicants for the United States army. No applicants have been considered here for the past five months, owing to there being no vacancies in the ranks. A large number of recruits are expected to apply within the next week. Captain George W. Kirkpatrick, of Evansville, will arrive here tomorrow night on business.

Walter Blackburn Goes Home.

Walter S. Blackburn, of Marion, who visited the local office of the United States circuit clerk yesterday with Allie Ronard, clerk of the United States court at Louisville, returned home yesterday afternoon. It is the general supposition that Mr. Blackburn has been offered the job and will accept it.

Illinois Central Railroad Gets Option on Property on Kentucky Avenue Between Tenth and Tracks

Statement Made That Company is Securing Factory Sites, But Belief is General it Would be Depot Site.

Options on property, fronting on Kentucky avenue between Tenth street and the Illinois Central railroad company, avowedly in the interest of the industrial department, have given rise to much speculation as to the real intention of the company, and the hope for a more centrally located passenger station is revived.

C. E. Jennings, the local real estate dealer, has been engaged the last few days taking options on property, said to include practically everything along the Kentucky avenue for a block south of the tracks. He declined to state for what purpose he was working, but it was learned upon further inquiry that the Illinois Central is behind him, and the industrial department is supposed to be looking for factory sites, in anticipation of the growth of the city. Whether options extended to Washington street and Broadway is not known.

The location, however, is ideal for a downtown station, and the eyes of engineers of other systems, which have surveyed routes into the city, have been fixed on this territory. With the advent of more railroads, it is confidently believed that the Illinois Central will want a station close in, and a union passenger station is not beyond possibility.

E. W. Whittemore stated today that there have been more inquiries about real estate the last fortnight than for any similar period in years. Other dealers report the same wide-awake condition.

COTTON BELT

WILL COME TO PADUCAH OVER
N. C. & ST. L.

Will Gain Access to St. Louis, Over
Tracks of Iron Mountain Route.

Following the negotiations of a traffic contract with the Louisville and Nashville by the Cotton Belt, by which the latter railroad secures trackage into Paducah, Ky., thus forwarding its trunk system south of the Ohio there, says the Murphysboro, (Ill.) Republican Era, it comes out that the Cotton Belt will route through trains over the new Burlington line from Metropolis to Herrin, Ill., and thence over the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern tracks, through Murphysboro and to Fordyce. At Fordyce connection will be made with the valley branch of the Iron Mountain direct into St. Louis.

Members of the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse commission gave the new Burlington its inspection last Tuesday and Wednesday.

The coming of Cotton Belt trains over the Iron Mountain to East St. Louis means additional railroad facilities for Murphysboro. Both the passenger service and freight service will be increased, as all trains will be fast, through ones, right off the Cotton Belt trunk line. It will mean ten to twelve additional trains during every 24 hours, four of which, at least, will be fast passenger trains.

Women Are Smoking The "Pimp Sticks"

New York, July 21.—Miss Lucy Page Gaston, of Chicago, founder of the Anti-Cigarette League of America, said she thinks it an outrage that Alice Roosevelt, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Miss Eleanor Sears, a society leader of Boston, smoke cigarettes and encourage the habit. She will send a reproving letter to Miss Sears and Mrs. Longworth with

SANITORIUM AT JACKSON'S HILL IS COMPLETED

Attractively Situated and Well Equipped City Institution.

For the Treatment of Tuberculosis Patients.

MEETING OF THE ASSOCIATION.

The Anti-tuberculosis Society sanatorium has been completed, and a meeting of the directors, and all who are interested in the work, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4:30, at the Woman's club to discuss the plans of the organization and to try to interest more people in the institution.

Mr. J. T. Donovan and Mr. H. C. Rhodes, of the building committee, took representatives of the press out to inspect the building this morning, and everything was found almost ready for its opening. The sanatorium is located on the Hendersonville road, about five miles from town, on what was known as the Potter farm. The city bought it a few years ago, to use as an additional cemetery, but it was unavailable on account of its location, being too far from the city. As a location, however, for an anti-tuberculosis farm, it is ideal. There are 137 acres in the tract, and the ground is high and rolling, thus affording splendid drainage.

The building is situated on a high hill, overlooking the farm, and is set in a beautiful grove of trees, and only about 50 yards from the road. It is one story, frame construction, 118 feet by 20, and is T shape. In the center are the dining room, and enclosed rooms for the superintendent, and for use in stormy weather, and on each side are the exposed rooms for the patients, one side for men and the other for women. In the rear is the kitchen. The building is plainly finished but neat, and is built on the most modern plans for such structures.

The sanatorium proper will be used for patients who pay fees, and on the grounds will be erected tents for the charity patients. All will receive the same treatment and be subjected to the same regulations.

It is indeed a credit to the city, and to the men and women who have devoted their time to the organization of the society and the construction of the building. The city council gave $2,500 and the other funds were raised by private subscription. The county has not given a cent, although the statistics show that more residents of the county are subjected to the disease than city folk. It is hoped, however, that the county will subscribe something to its maintenance.

Under the laws of the state, the sanatorium will be entitled to $12.50 a year from the state, for each patient who is entered, and the directors will apply for this.

When completed the farm and sanatorium will represent an investment approximating $12,000 and will be one of the few similar institutions in Kentucky. Louisville has one, and Henderson is now trying to organize a society to erect one.

The directors earnestly request the presence of every one who is interested in the white plague campaign at the meeting tomorrow afternoon.

ONLY ONE ARREST AT FULTON POLLS

LOCAL OPTION ELECTION PROGRESSES AMIDST GREAT EXCITEMENT.

Fulton, Ky., July 21. (Special.)—Amid scenes of great excitement Fulton's local option election is in progress today. Women and children are out in force, cheering on the drys and furnishing refreshments to the workers. The wets have two bands to stimulate their workers. There has been no trouble, and both sides claim the victory. The only arrest up to early afternoon was the service of a breach of peace warrant on one negro, when the wets lined up their colored voters at the polls. The wets claim the warrant is several days old and was held back for the opportune moment to delay and intimidate their colored vote.

Captain Ed Farley, state treasurer, is in the city. He arrived this week to attend the funeral and burial of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James S. Robertson, who was buried yesterday. Captain Farley probably will remain several days.

Requisition is Issued For John Hunt, Charged in County Warrant With Murder of Pool Road Victim

It is Probable That Difficulty May be Experienced in Collecting Reward if He is the Right Man.

Requisition papers for the return of John Hunt, in jail at Murphysboro, Ill., to Paducah on a charge of murder, have been applied for by local authorities and they are expected to arrive tomorrow Saturday. Detective T. J. Moore has been nominated by Commonwealth Attorney Lovett to go after Hunt and bring him here to face trial on the charge of murdering the unidentified victim found in the woods near the Pool road April 10.

Officials and attorneys are divided in their opinion as to whether the commonwealth will make out a case against Hunt. It is said that allis establishing the fact that Hunt was not in Paducah on the day of the murder or preceding April 9, will be submitted at the examining trial. Hunt on the other hand, has been identified by H. V. Keebler as being the boy in company with the victim the day before the body was found.

Detective Moore probably will leave Saturday or Sunday for Murphysboro, if the requisition papers get here by that time.

Requisition Issued.
Frankfort, Ky., July 21.—As a climax to one of the longest and most persistent searches for a man accused of crime known in this state, Governor Wilson yesterday issued a requisition upon Governor Deane, of Illinois, for the return to Kentucky of John Hunt, alias Harry Wilson, who is wanted in Paducah on the charge of murdering an unknown white man on the outskirts of that

Indians Drop Last Game.
Vincennes Ind., July 21.—Vincennes practically clinched the pennant of the first part of the season yesterday afternoon when the Alices defeated the Indians 4 to 0. The locals now have a lead of three games over Clarksville with half the season to end this week. It seems that the Tennesseans cannot overcome the handicap. Gosnell worked for Vincennes yesterday and the star southpaw was in excellent trim, mowing down the visitors and permitting only two safe hits. Lockhart, the centerfielder was placed in the box to relieve the pitchers, and he twirled good ball. However, he was touched up for eight hits that cost the Paducahs four scores.
Score— R H E
Vincennes 4 8 2
Paducah 0 2 1
Batteries: Vincennes, Gosnell and Fish; Paducah, Lockhart and Overton.

Clarksville Won Out.

Clarksville, Tenn., July 21.—It was a case of anybody's game yesterday afternoon until the last man was out, but Clarksville finally managed to emerge the victor by a score of 5 to 4. Hoyt started the game for the locals, but the Hoppers took so kindly to his curves that Keen went into the box. Yon twirled again for Hopkinsville, and was batted hard, eleven safe bingles being the result. However, the game was close, and Keen assisted in winning his own game by his hard hitting.
Score— R H E
Clarksville 5 11 4
Hopkinsville 4 8 0
Batteries: Clarksville, Hoyt, Keen and McWilliams; Hopkinsville, Yon and Gruesser.

Zeke Taylor May Sign.

Big Zeke Taylor is in Paducah and may be signed up to play the outfield for Paducah. Taylor is well known in independent ball in Paducah and has the reputation of hitting 'em a mile. He has been playing first base in the Blue Grass league, and putting up a good article of ball. It is expected that he will be signed by the locals, as batting is a weak point with the Indians, and they need somebody who is able to start off the fire works and encourage the team to hit better.

Hub Perdue, who pitched star ball in the old Kilty, and was graduated to the Southern league, is still with the Nashville team. This season Perdue seems in better shape than ever before and his last four games have been won by shut-out scores.

Flanagan, who was given his release from the Hopkinsville team, is being tried out at short by the Vincennes team. Flanagan succeeds Crimmins, also an old Hopkinsville player, who was let go by the Alices. Lynch was released by Hopkinsville after being on the bench for over a week. He suffered with a "Charley horse" and seemed unable to get into condition although a grand little player when in trim. The Indians have been overburdened with double-headers. Seven games in four days were played at Vincennes. This afternoon and tomorrow double-headers will be played at Clarksville in order that the season may be completed.

If Overton had a little more weight he would stand much chance of going higher. For his size few can equal him as a catcher. * * * * * Dummy Payne is playing a great game at third for Paducah and in almost every game kills hits. Cox at first is another rattling good man with the Indians. Neither player is much when it comes to hitting, but as batters they class well with any in the league. * * * * * Umpire Lucas decisions on balls and strikes were quite often yesterday but as a rule they were pretty near correct.—Vincennes Capital.

MIRACULOUS IS ESCAPE OF BELT

MOTORMAN ON STREET CAR IS RUN OVER.

Car is Suspended on Ground and Prevents Injury to Man Beneath It.

CAR JUMPS TRACK AT CURVE

Miraculous was the escape from death by Motorman J. C. Belt and the escape of passengers from serious injury last night when street car, No. 103, left the rails on a curve at Sixth and Clark streets and plowed its way across the street and sidewalk. In an effort to apply the brakes after leaving the rails, Belt was thrown out from under the car, while several passengers were tossed from their seats by the jolt and sudden halt of the car.

When first removed from under the car it was feared that Belt was seriously injured, but careful medical examination showed his injuries consisted of bruises only.

At the time of the accident street car, No. 103, in charge of Motorman Belt and Conductor Coleman, was running north on Sixth street. At night the car makes the loop from Third street. The curve is considered treacherous as frequently cars are derailed, but Motorman Belt permitted his car to take the curve under full headway. Barely had the car started the swing when the front wheels left the rails and started across the street. The trolley left the wire, and the car was in complete darkness. Both trucks left the track, and the car plowed across the gravel street to the gutter. The front trucks struck the stone curbing, and were torn loose, while the momentum of the car carried the body of it across the sidewalk and several feet into the Brazelton yard. At the curbing a pole, suspending the trolley, was snapped off at the base, and was thrown upon the top of the car.

The only explanation given of the accident is that Motorman Belt was "lost" and did not realize that the car was upon the curve and failed to shut off the power until too late. Both the Sixth street line and the Union Station line turn at Clark street, and it is thought that Belt saw the reflection of the rails of the Union Station line and thought that it was a straight stretch of track. As soon as the car left the rails, Belt exerted every effort to check the car with the hand brake. When the trucks gave way the brake handle flew around, and Belt was thrown through the glass vestibule. Several feet of the front of the car passed over his body, but fortunately the weight of the car was suspended by the lot which was higher than the sidewalk.

That the accident was without fatal or serious results is miraculous. The street car was not damaged seriously, and only a few scratches were made on the paint. Two glasses in the front vestibule were smashed. The street intersection has been an unfortunate place. About a year ago the South Sixth street car left the same curve and crashed into the sidewalk, injuring several people, while about six months ago Judge J. L. Bethshere received injuries in a collision with an automobile that resulted in his death.

POLICE ALERT

CAPTURE MAN WANTED AT JACKSON, TENN.

Within Twenty Minutes Patrolman Carter Has Vaughn Pariah in His Custody.

The alertness of the local police department was demonstrated this morning when a negro wanted at Jackson, Tenn., on a criminal charge was located and arrested 20 minutes after Chief of Police Singery received word from the authorities there to watch out for him.

A letter came from Sheriff W. G. Person in the morning's mail cautioning the police to keep a lookout for Vaughn Pariah, 22 years old, wanted there for having detained a colored girl under age. Chief Singery gave out the man's description to all patrolmen and a short time afterwards Patrolman Elmus Carter caught him at Seventh and Adams streets. He admitted his name and was taken to police headquarters, where he denied the charge against him. However, he consented to return to Jackson without requisition papers and Chief Singery telegraphed Sheriff Person, who will send for Pariah.

GLOBE THEATER'S PROFITS.

Every age has had its own conception of Shakespeare, but we of today are enjoying a nearer approach to the man and his associates than has been granted at any other time since his death. For nearly half a century scholars have been saying that we should probably never learn anything more that was definite about the personal Shakespeare, but in the last six years I have had the privilege of finding among documents preserved in various English archives, and of reporting, numerous records relating to Shakespeare, his colleagues and dramatic rivals, and the contemporary theaters, which supply materials that enable us to a considerable extent to reconstruct the life of the poet.

Our first definite knowledge of Shakespeare's financial interests in the Globe and Blackfriars comes to us from the Oster-Heminges records (which I made public in 1909) and from the documents, now for the first time revealed, in the suit of John Witter versus John Heminges and Henry Condell. Previously we could draw only general inferences from inexact data and conditions. A hundred years ago the theory was set going that Shakespeare must have disposed of any theatrical interests he may have owned about the time he may have retired to Stratford. It was inferred also, and is stated positively in most biographical notices on the basis of that mere inference, that he had no shares in the theaters at the time of his death. This notion arose from the fact that in his will Shakespeare does not mention any of the theatrical interests, and from the erroneous supposition that a will devises all the property specifically. But the fact is that wills rarely enumerate all the testator's possessions.

Shakespeare's income from his theatrical shares is a perennial subject of debate which these documents remove from speculation. In publishing the Oster-Heminges suit last October, I called attention to the estimate of $300 annual profit for Shakespeare's share, and gave warning that even that reduced estimate was excessive. Witter declares that his own income, previous to the burning of the Globe in 1615, and while he owned one-seventh of the moiety (that is, one-fourteenth of the entire property and profits of the Globe, the same as Shakespeare then owned), was from £30 to £40 a year. This would not exceed from 1240 to £320, or from $1,200 to $1,600 in the money of today. If we multiply that sum by fourteen, we shall know the profits of the entire company.

It is noteworthy that the amount of profit from one share in the Globe before 1613 agrees with the similar amount of £30 from one share in the Red Bull, as shown by new documents in "University Studies," and with a similar amount estimated at TURN OVER TIME.

When Nature Hints About the Food.

When there's no reason to any food and all that one eats does not seem to do any good then is the time to make a turn over in the diet, for that's Nature's way of dropping a hint that the food isn't the kind required.

"For a number of years I followed railroad work, much of it being office work of a trying nature. Meal times were our busiest and eating too much and too quickly of food such as is commonly served in hotels and restaurants, these together with the sedentary habits were not long in giving me dyspepsia and stomach trouble which reduced my weight from 205 to 160 pounds.

"There was little relish in any food and none of it seemed to do me any good. It seemed the more I ate the poorer I got and was always hungry before another meal, no matter how much I had eaten.

"Then I commenced a fair trial of Grape-Nuts food, and was surprised how a small saucer of it would carry me along, strong and with satisfied appetite, until the next meal, with no sensations of hunger, weakness or distress as before.

"I have been following this diet now for several months and my improvement has been so great all the others in my family have taken up use of Grape-Nuts with complete satisfaction and much improvement in health and brain power.

"American people undoubtedly eat hurriedly, have lots of worry, thus hindering digestion and therefore need a food that is predigested and concentrated in nourishment."

from £33 to £53 for different periods from one-sixth of the Blackfriars prior to 1608, when Shakespeare's company took that theater and divided it into seven shares. After the Globe was rebuilt in 1614, the profits were greatly increased, Witter says, and he now offers to accept half a share, in lieu of the one forfeited, at a yearly rent of £13 6s. 8d., or, as an alternative, to take the profits from the house Heminges had recently been allowed to build on the Globe ground and from other houses there pay the rent of the entire property to Brend, and risk clearing then more than the £30 to £40, which he formerly received when each owned one-seventh of the moiety.

A large fancy has hitherto assumed that Shakespeare's yearly income from his share of the Globe was from £500 to £600 (in modern money possibly from $4,000 to $4,800, or from about $20,000 to $24,000 a year). Multiply that by fourteen, the number of shares at Shakespeare's death, or by 16, the number after his death, and we have a grand total of assumed profits of from £56,000 to £66,800 (about $280,000 to $334,000 a year for the company). This sort of a "biographical fancy" pictured Shakespeare as a shrewd business man who, having accumulated large wealth (perhaps half a million dollars), scorned the noble art of poetry after it had served such merely aord ends, retired to his country home at Stratford, and there lived the life of a wealthy gentleman.

The Witter-Heminges pleadings supplement the Oster-Heminges records, and are also supplemented by them. Here, we have, Shakespeare and his associates in a precarious business enterprise that they have staked their whole future upon in democratic brotherhood. Failure or success affects not merely the financial returns, but the dramatic effort of both playwright and actors. Throughout Shakespeare's plays and in the history of the company so far as we know it from records like these, optimistic ideals dominated the hard conditions.—Century.

At The Star Theater.

An act that is entirely new to this county will open at the Star theater for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is a couple of European high-class French magicians, presenting a most beautiful and wonderful entertainment of magic, wonder work and magic illusions.

In one trick "The Novelty Flower Illusion," the ordinary tray is shown empty and instantly is loaded with white flowers and then the flowers change color from white to red before your very eyes. It is claimed for the McMateos, who but recently arrived in this country, that they are the biggest sensation on this circuit.

The real fun of the performance is in the hands of Austin and Klumker two blackface artists, who are real comedians with real comedy and real eccentric dancing.

Two reels of moving pictures will be run at each performance and Frank Long will render a beautiful illustrated song in Frank's best style. Admission 10c, children 5c. Two performances in the afternoon and two performances at night.

NEXT MEETING OF PADUCAH DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dr. G. T. Sullivan Reports Interesting and Profitable Session at Arlington.

Rev. G. T. Sullivan returned last evening from Arlington, where he attended the Methodist conference. Dr. Sullivan reported that the conference was well attended and that all of the business was wisely dispatched. The delegates were hospitably entertained by the Arlington people.

The session was held in the handsome church recently erected. All the reports from pastors showed that the work throughout the district is in a splendid condition. Rev. W. J. Mezey, the presiding elder, wisely managed all the business of the session and was much pleased with the work performed by the preachers. C. J. Barlow, W. D. Dodds, J. F. Sear, Paul McNichols, were elected delegates to the annual conference which meets here in Broadway Methodist church November 9th. C. W. Morrison, and Soule Palmer were elected alternates. After the business session the conference adjourned at 5 p. m. yesterday to meet at Wingo, Ky., next year.

Classes Hold Joint Meeting.

At a joint meeting of the Phila. and Baraca classes of the Fountain Avenue Methodist church, held at the residence of Robert B. Baker, 1910 Broadway, Tuesday evening, officers for the ensuing year were elected, committees formed and work planned for the coming year.

A successful and profitable year for both classes has just closed and the prospects for still better work are bright.

Refreshments were served at the close of the business session, and the meeting was pronounced a success from every standpoint, and very entertaining and profitable to the large number of both classes present.

ROADS HOLD UP

COMMITTEE REPRESENTING CARRIERS AND KNAPP AGREE.

Pact Entered Into With Eastern Lines May Be Followed by Western Roads.

Washington, July 21.—Important advances in freight rates recently made by the railways in eastern classification territory will be suspended voluntarily by the railroads until November 1 next. This agreement was made by a committee representing the carriers and by Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission.

Chairman Knapp authorized the following announcement concerning the voluntary action taken by the railroads:

"It being understood that the commission would exercise its authority under the new law and suspend all general important rate advances made for the purpose of increasing revenue, the principal carriers in official classification territory proposed today voluntarily to postpone the effective date of such advanced rates until November 1 next, and an arrangement to that effect was made after a conference with the commission.

"This will not delay investigation and decision as to the reasonableness of the proposed advances, but will obviate the necessity at this time for numerous suspension orders which otherwise would be made."

It is not unlikely that a similar arrangement may be made before the end of this week between the commission and the carriers in the Western Trunk Line Association territory. The carriers have taken this attitude in order to facilitate the work of the commission.

Queen Bee one Astray.

A newly married couple were beginning their honeymoon in a city hotel. The bride went out to do some shopping, and when she returned she found herself puzzled to decide which was their room. When she thought she had located it she tapped timidly on the panel, and breathed:

"It's me, honey; let me in."

There was no response, and she tapped louder and said:

"Honey, it's me, and I want to come in." "Madam," said a gruff voice from the other side of the door, "this ain't no beehive; it's a bathroom."—Everybody's Magazine.

Daily Thought.

Nor knowest thou what argument Thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent.

A remodeling sale of stamps and money orders would be in style, now.

An exchange says "Murdoch skinned Cannon alive," which shows the political advantage of being decided, like Mr. Bryan.

New Jersey is growing excessively modern, with Edward Townsend, originator of "Chimmie Fadden", running for congress; Editor Ridgeway of the American magazine, running for mayor, and President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton, running for governor.

The Rev. G. L. Morrill, pastor of the People's church at Minneapolis, in reply to strictures of the park police on "spooning in public places," declared that Adam and Eve spooned in the Garden of Eden;
but Dr. Morrill forgets that Adam and Eve were driven out of the garden.

"The newspapers are reporting a rumor as a piece of interesting news, that the Ballinger investigating committee would whitewash the secretary of the interior. As if that was news," says the Kentucky State Journal.

Also that the minority would stretch the facts to malign Ballinger.
As if that were news! Be fair brother.

The effort to secure an enabling ordinance for the merger of $700-000 worth of heating and lighting plants at Louisville with a $4,000-000 capitalization, is a satisfactory explanation of the visit of Mayor Head to Frankfort to urge the passage of an amendment to the Louisville charter, ousting the Republican city attorney, and providing for the appointment of his successor. Attorney Carroll, whom Head intended to appoint, is attorney for the merging corporations.

Mr. Bryan's latest utterance that "Cannon is the Democrats' biggest gun" in the approaching campaign, suggests the possibility of capturing the enemies' works at the Cannon's mouth and turning their own guns on them. And, verily, the recent noise in Kansas sounded as if this particular big gun already was turned on some of the enemy, though Cannon himself averred that this is not war, but peace—the peace that cometh all understanding.

THE MOTH AND THE FLAME.

It was not in the "red light" district, but down the "great white way" that Mayor Gaynor, of New York, descender of Epictetus and man of the world, strolled inco in the late hours of the night. One of the human moths that had fluttered into the blazing path of gorgeous folly and singed its wings, saw a quiet, modest, well-to-do looking party, with the air of a newcomer on Broadway at night about him, and dashed into him in the mad whirl of the midnight orgy in a popular "lobster palace." The silly moth put out the light on the "great white way." The mayor could not find in the philosophy of Epictetus sanction for the existence of an institution which a gentleman might not enter with immunity from the insult of flaunting vice. He left open enough places to accommodate the newspaper men, and now the actors, whose playhouses around in the lobster belt, are demanding consideration. They probably will be accommodated, and

SYSTEM IN STREET BUILDING.
Lexington proposes to take advantage of the Allen paving law for second class cities in a systematic manner, that well could be emulated by this city. It will pledge municipal credit for a half million dollars to re-construct all the streets of the city. The plan to permanently pave the streets instead of just graveling them seems most prac-cable under the new street law, authorizing cities to issue bonds to cover the cost of the work, which is assessed against abutting property and payable to the city in 10 annual installments for the redemption of the bonds with interest in ten years.

When people pay for the improvement of streets in front of their houses, it is not right to surface the streets with a substance that will be worn out and require the same expenditure over again before the property owners finish paying for the work already done. Permanently paved streets with brick, asphalt or bitulith enhance the value of the abutting property beyond the amount it costs within the period of payment. This cannot be said of a dust crowned street, that requires dust or sprinkling constantly, must be repaired at frequent intervals, and is liable to complete destruction in times of torrential rains. The new paving law is especially adaptable to the permanent construction of city streets, but scarcely expedient for temporary work.

Moreover, the idea of systematic improvement is worthy of consideration. An unbiased, expert survey of the city should precede a large expenditure of city funds and the imposition of a large expense on the property owners. We can understand and appreciate the desire of members of the general council to look after their own wards; but we cannot subscribe to such a policy.
This survey should include the further feature of extending streets, opening necessary alley ways and the conversion of cul de sacs into thoroughfares in order to make all parts of the city easily accessible to all other parts, and to give a direct route from the main roads leading into the country to the heart of the city.

In this survey, too, the park board should have a voice, so that the general park and boulevard system may be extended as the city is opened up, adding whatever attractiveness is possible to every section of Paducah, and developing the city beautiful co-extensively with the city utilitarian.

Much Traveled Horse.

Until the building of the N. & W.
railroad through the southwestern part of West Virginia the mail throughout all that section of the country had to be carried on horseback. For many years a man by the name of Goodwin Adkins, who resided at Wayne, seemed to have the inside on the mail contracts. He, for years, carried it on several of the routes whose terminations were at "Trout's Hill," or Wayne.

During this time he had an old "clay bank" colored horse, a small-sized animal, not weighing much more than a thousand pounds, if that much. In fact, for about six years this seemed to be about the only horse he kept. During these six years Adkins had the following mail contracts:

From Wayne to Warfield, weekly, round trip 140 miles.

From Wayne to Cove Creek, weekly, round trip 50 miles.

From Wayne to Louisa, round trip
28 miles.

From Wayne to Ceredo, round trip,
40 miles.

The total mileage for each week was 258. Thus it required the travel of 13,416 miles each year and for the six years that he had those routes would require a travel of 80,496 miles, enough to circle the globe
three times and go over to New York on a fourth start.—Catlettsburg Tribune.

In compliance with an order issued by the Lighthouse Board at Washington, electric lights must be used on all bridges over rivers where electric light is possible. W. W.
Buchanan, inspector for the fourteenth lighthouse district, is no notifying owners who have structures across the Ohio river. It is claimed that all railroads and municipalities controlling bridges over navigable streams must use electricity for the channel signals. The order is the result of a petition from Pittsburgh Harbor No. 25 Masters, Mates and Pilots, to the Lighthouse Board Jan.
4, 1910. It was claimed that since the introduction of electricity the electric lights on the roadways of the bridges dim the oil lamps, making navigation difficult and hazardous, especially during the fall and winter months when there is a boating stage sufficient to ship coal.—Evan-

Illinois to be tried on the charge of robbery.

If Hunt is the man for whom the detectives of five states have been searching for three months then he will be able to solve the mystery that surrounds the identity of the young man who was murdered in the city of Paducah on April 10, for he alone knows who he is if he committed the crime. The man rests in an unmarked grave, and if he is able to give the name of the man there will be some relief to the people of Paducah.

Remarkable Case.

The case is one of the most remarkable in the criminal history of this state, and has brought up for solution more seemingly impossible connections than any case of the kind known. The body of the unknown man was found dead on the outskirts of Paducah on the morning of April 10, and on the same evening Bert Quire and Albert Hale, two young men, were arrested on the charge of having committed the crime.

They employed Attorney David Browning to defend them, and it seemed as if their case was lost, for on April 21, Mrs. Thompson, the mother of Luther "Red" Thompson, went to her home from Birmingham, Ala., and identified the body as being that of her son, who had left his home at Decatur, Ala., a short time before the murder was committed.

The young men claimed that they knew Red Thompson and that the dead body was not that of Red Thompson, but on the contrary that they knew that Red Thompson was alive. This assertion in the face of the identification of the body by Mrs.
Thompson as being that of her son seemed to be a foolish statement, but nevertheless on April 23, four days later, Mrs. Thompson was taken to Dayton, Tenn., where she met her son, Red Thompson, who was working on a steamboat in that city.

She was dumbfounded, but acknowledged her mistake and the two young men were freed, and given their liberty. This accomplishment was brought about through the in-<

Danderine

Grows Hair
and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:

"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.

"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

A NEW ROLE FOR THE CHURCH

DR. GLADDEN PROPOSES RADICAL EXTENSION OF LIFE.

How the Church's Old Time Leadership in the Community May Be Restored.

A MUNICIPAL ORGANIZATION

It is safe to assert that the state of the Christian church in this country at the end of the first decade of the twentieth century is not all that could be desired. Without indulging in any pessimistic deplorings or venturing on any percentages or estimates, I am content to rest this statement on the experience and observation of intelligent men. Put this question to any Christian minister: "Is your church today sustaining the relation to all classes of the community which you would like to have it sustain? Has it the measure of respect from the high and the low, the powerful and the weak, the learned and the ignorant, that you would like to claim for it? If you are a pastor of a good many years' experience, do you feel that your church is gaining in its hold upon the people round about it?"

The only way to judge of the true condition of the Christian church is to bring it into immediate contact with the character of Jesus Christ. It claims to be the body of which he is the head, the organism in which he lives and through which his life is manifested in the world. The primary question is, therefore, whether its life reproduces his life. By as much as it does not must its strength be impaired and its influence annulled.

I do not wish to undertake that part of our Lord's ministry in which he sought to bring men into conscious fellowship with God. That work of restoring the wayward and disobedient to the joy of sonship and the strength of virtue was never absent from his thought. We must not undervalue this, but we do not need to get into its proper perspective before our minds this other phase of our Lord's ministry. And there can be no doubt that his relation to the poor and friendless was the outstanding fact of that ministry.

We are comparing the life of the church of today with the life of its Master. How does it compare in this respect? Is it giving an equal proportion of its ministry to social service? Do the sick and the poor and the despised in our American cities think of the churches of these cities in the same way that the same kind of people in Galilee and Decapolis used to think of Jesus Christ?

Martin Luther's idea was that the care of the sick and the poor ought to be handed over to the community instead of being provided for by the religious organizations. His expectation was, of course, that the community—the municipality or the state—would be so thoroughly Christianized that this work could be safely entrusted to it. That was the idea of the New England church as also. When the town and the church were one, the church had the philanthropic work in its hands; when the church was separated from the town, the church relinquished to the town this part of its function. But it was supposed that the political community would be so fully Christianized that the work would be properly done.

It is highly probable that the first Christian churches were municipal churches; that in every town or city was one church with several local congregations, each with its elder or leader, and all co-operating in the work of the city. The need of the hour is the restoration to every town or city of the municipal church. It ought to include all the Christians of the municipality; every Christian

WILL STOP BACKACHE

A man who can do this seldom complains of backache. His kidneys are in pretty good condition. Those who can not vary the children "pick-a-back," or when even less strenuous exercise causes sharp pains over the kidneys, should try a few doses of the new Barkola Globes treatment. It is said to be remarkably effective and a splendid tonic for out of order kidneys and bladder. Druggists say it is fine for too frequent urination, dizzy spells, nervousness and rheumatism. It is giving such universal satisfaction that it is sold under a positive guarantee by Gilbert's Drug Store.

organization should be represented in it.

Its claim to the philanthropic leadership of the community would not be disputed. If it is the body of which Christ is the head, that is its first business. In passing it over to the state the church has divested itself of its most vital function. The loss is lamentable, almost fatal; the weakness of the church in this latter day is largely due to it. The church must recover this function; it is not a mere matter of expediency, it is a question of life or death.

For such a service as this the municipal church would require no creed. Its simple message to the world would be: "We believe in the friendship of Jesus Christ, and we live to make it known to those who need it most."

Nor would it need any new machinery. In most communities the nucleus of such an organization as is required already exists. There is a local Federation of Churches or a United Brotherhood, which holds occasional union meetings, and sometimes finds it hard to justify its own existence. Let it assume this task. Let the churches commission it to represent them in this larger service to which Christ is calling them.—Century.

LOTS OF FUN

WAS ELKS AND LIGHT AND POWER GAME.

Played It for Sake of Charity and Many Tickets Were Disposed of.

Fun in plentiful quantities was afforded the fans yesterday afternoon in the game between the Elks and the Light & Power company team. Both of the teams have not held regular practice for several weeks, and the game was not as fast as Kitty league ball. The Elks managed to win by the score of 7 to 0. The game was played for charity, and two-thirds of the funds will be distributed to charitable organizations while one-third will be placed in the charity fund of the Elks.

McChesney twirled a splendid game for the Elks and never was in danger of being scored on as with men on bases he tightened up so that it was impossible for his opponents to hit the ball. Furnish started the game for the Light & Power team, but later was relieved by Reynburn, who started the game behind the bat. A fair size crowd was out although many bought tickets and did not attend.

ALLEGED DEFRAUDER

ALEXANDER HOLLANDER ACCUSED OF FRAUDS.

Was Head of Brokerage Firm in New York—Disappeared in January.

Naples, July 21.—Alexander Hollander, wanted by the federal authorities at New York in connection with the customs house frauds was arrested here today by an American detective named Paulin.

Hollander was apprehended under the name of James Bonhome. It is understood that Hollander was at the head of the customs brokerage firm of Alexander Hollander & Co., at 82 Wall street. He left New York last January, following the arrest of two of his clerks on charges of falsifying invoices and certificates of appraisal.

Search Widespread. New York, July 20.—Alexander Hollander, who was arrested today in Naples, has been the object of widespread search by federal officials for months past. He was an importing agent, and in the course of right investigation by the federal government into customs house frauds early this year, he was indicted on charge of having conspired to defraud the government out of customs duties. The alleged method pursued by him was to prepare falsified invoices and certificates of appraisal, collecting the full duties from his customers, but paying the government tariff on the changed documents.

Yes, the world is growing wiser—thanks to the trust and legislative investigations.

LARGE MEETING OF DEMOCRATS

ILLINOIS DENOUNCES MEN WHO VOTED FOR LORIMER.

Strong Resolutions Adopted at the Gathering at Lincoln, Ill., Yesterday.

COME TO AID OF THE PEOPLE.

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—Democrats from all parts of the state gathered at Lincoln and in vigorous terms denounced the action of those Democratic members of the state legislature who deserted the party's choice for United States senator and voted for William Lorimer.

In resolution the convention endorsed the recommendation of the state central committee that two Democratic candidates be nominated in each legislative district in the state. Also commend those 24 members of the legislature who adhered to the primary nominee of the party for United States senator.

The resolutions further declare "we, as the representatives of the Democracy of Illinois, do proclaim to the nation that we do not accept the responsibility as a party for Lorimer's election to the senate, and condemn the action of the Democrats in the legislature as being their individual action and repudiate every such vote for Lorimer as a party measure."

The resolution concludes with an invitation to honest and patriotic men to come to the rescue of the state and drive from power the Republican oligarchy and thereby restore good government to the people.

WHOSE SAND?

OWNER OF ISLAND WOULD RESTRAIN DIGGERS.

Suit Brought by R. L. Reeves, et al., Against Ohio River Sand Company.

Ownership of the sand and gravel in the Ohio river is contested in a suit filed in the McCracken circuit court by Robert L. Reeves and G. P. Husbands against the Ohio River Sand and Gravel company, and Daniel Fitzpatrick. The plaintiffs allege that they are owners of an island in the Tennessee river near its confluence with the Ohio river, and since they purchased it in January, 1909, it has doubled in size. They allege that the defendants have wrongfully removed sand and gravel from the island, and seek to have the sand company restrained from removing the sand and gravel and to recover $100 damages. The suit is interesting, and the decision will attract much attention.

CHAPTER IX.

EVEN a more obtuse and inexperienced man than Eugene Kirby would not have failed to interpret Adele's words and bearing, the cause of which was as yet beyond her understanding. Kirby knew that he was dealing with no coquette, who sought to pander to vanity or who considered all men the playthings of an idle hour. It was not so much Adele's words as her manner, which betrayed a frank liking and interest, which, despite his modest arguments to the contrary, could no longer be attributed to an impersonal regard for safety and welfare. He saw that, unknown to herself, she was rapidly passing through the various stages of liking and interest, heading straight for that inevitable climax which is dignified by the term love. In view of the fact that he had already arrived there and had made every effort to assist her toward the same goal, the present misgivings and self-censure which now assailed him were decidedly out of place.

True to his character, he had acted first and considered last. He had put forth every effort to please, to awaken her heart, and now that there were signs that it was answering he was dismayed. In the flush of his new and welcome experience he had forgotten his calling, his reputation—forgotten that he was a common gambler, with no claim upon such society as he was now enjoying—forgotten everything but that, by some miraculous fortune, he had, by some miracle, been transplanted to the land of his dreams, had met its central figure and had promptly plunged head over heels in love.

Kirby's thorough if tardy self-censure, however, was hardly justified, for he had made no conscious efforts to enlist Adele's regard, and their mutual attraction had been an instantaneous and spontaneous as it was natural and to be expected. But the knowledge of her identity had awakened him to a lively sense of his true position, and, although he was far from being the scoundrel which Moreau had pictured and Adele believed him, his regard for her clearly showed him that by remaining he was jeopardizing her future peace and happiness. He must save her from herself and from him and, no matter how difficult it would prove, kill her dawning interest, which naturally was based on the supposition that he was a gentleman privileged to associate with one of her standing. Filled with this resolution, he now turned and said:

"Miss Randall, you've been kinder to me than any woman ever was. You saved my life this morning. But my friend is right. I'd better go. Already you've helped me more than you ought."

Instantly the angelic, wrapt expression was sponged from her face, and, astonished, almost angry, she turned upon him.

"Why? What right have you to say that?" she demanded. "Do you think I don't want to?"

"No," he admitted. "But—but I can't stay."

"Do you want me to believe that you're afraid?"

"Yes, I'm afraid."

"Afraid because we expect the real Colonel Moreau tonight or tomorrow? I'm not afraid of his coming, and you can't make me believe that you are. I don't believe you were ever afraid of a man in your life." She stood very straight and looked into his eyes, an incredulous, challenging smile on her lips.

"No, I was never afraid of a man," he admitted quietly. "But I am afraid of—"

"Of me?" she whispered interpreting the pause.

"Yes," he said simply.

Her eyes battled to meet his own, but every effort proved futile, and at length, coloring vividly, she sought the garden seat, half turning her back, while he pre-empted the arm, toying restlessly with the white camellia he still carried.

"I gather from the stories you read the General," he continued, bending toward her, while he smiled half cynically, "that the bad prince always keeps following the beautiful princess, and of course she always finds him out. Now, it looks to me like a weakness in his character that he doesn't quit before she has the chance to. In my opinion, he's a fool to take the risk."

Her answer came tremulously, but withal brave and to the point.

"I suppose I could find a story in which she would want him to take the chance. Now—now, are you going to stay?" turning and looking up, half daringly into his eyes.

"I can't," he said doggedly. "And the sooner I go the better. Don't let anything ever make you sorry that you helped me. Goodbye." And, throwing the camellia on the bench, he resolutely offered his hand.

But she ignored the hand and picked up the discarded flower.

"Not yet, not yet," she whispered. "There is Ann calling me, and I must dress for dinner. But I shall expect to see you again before you leave. You will wait here? You may tell me goodbye then—if you wish to."

He bowed, seating himself dejectedly

ly on the garden seat, while she flew into the house.

The sun had set, and twilight was fast approaching, the shadows of the trees blending in one solid gray impalpable mass. It seemed as if the disappearance of the sun and Adele had been coincident, productive of the same effect. Without warning the day's work seemed to be clamoring for toll, demanding more than Kirby owned. He felt weary, spent, utterly forsaken and alone, the bleak and barren future stretching interminably before him. Hostage of his bitter humor, he was oblivious to the fact that the old negro, Croup, watching his opportunity, had stolen from the house and was now regarding him fixedly, and he started when at length the other timidly ventured to address him.

"Marse, yo' scuse me, sah. Could yo' be so 'blig'n' an' kind fo' me to ask yo' a question?" prefaced Croup, with a humble bow. "I got a very strong membunce o' de way yo' is favored in de profile, but it must 'a' been a long time since yo' was here, kase I don't place yo' das right, specially by de name, sah."

"I have never been here before," replied Kirby truthfully.

"Well, I 'clah ole Croup got a rack his wool some, kase I knows yo' face as well as I knows my own. I bet I ain't goin' to get to sleep a wink tonight tryin' to 'memb' whah it was I know yo', sah."

Amused by the other's evident perplexity, Kirby in his characteristic fashion temporarily dismissed his own trouble and said, with a smile: "Come, cheer up. It isn't as bad as that."

Instantly Croup turned, electrified, while he clapped both hands behind outstanding ears. "What yo' say, sah?" he cried. "Bless God, 'LIV' Marse Come Cheer Up! It's done come to me. It's Marse Gene Kirby!"

"S-sh! Don't call me that," warned the other, jumping to his feet.

"No, sah. I don't say dat name no mo'," replied Croup, with an effort restraining his excitement and pleasure. "Twas your own pa done ris me, sah, an' yo' can trust me clean thro' to de bone. I'm Croup, what done knowed yo' was 'LIV' marse. But what yo' doin' here? 'Tain't safe. Dey das natchally goin' to kill yo', Marse Gene. Honey, yo' must git off a dis land as quick as yo' kin."

"Thank you for the warning, Croup," said Kirby, offering his hand. "But don't you worry about me. I'm going. Can you get two horses for me? Good! Have them saddled and bring them around on the road."

As the old serving man ambled away Larkin Bunce appeared. The plieotic gambler was thoroughly miserable with his surroundings and had decided to make a last appeal to his partner.

"Praise the Lord," he began earnestly. "That the nigger's given you sense enough to see that you've got to go."

His composure somewhat recovered; but, still chucking and occasionally going off into another spasm of laughter, the judge proceeded to explain the manner in which he had gained the interesting information.

"The afternoon steamer does not stop, sir, and I am obliged to row out in a boat to get my letters. The news was shouted to us from the deck as she moved away. All I could catch was the words, 'Colonel Moreau dead,' and I think they added, 'This morning.' The distance was too great for me to secure any further items from that interesting liar, sir."

And, still laughing, Playdell clapped Kirby on the shoulder, while Mr. Bunce, drawing his first long breath, mutely thanked the Almighty that all guilelessness and innocence had not entirely deserted mankind when the serpent entered Eden.

But it was apparent that Mr. Randall and M. Veaudry owned more discernment and that their quick suspicions, previously aroused, had now become active, pregnant with danger. So happened that they were now augmented by none other than the General, who would have died rather than wittingly betray his trust. During the judge's discourse the boy had joined the group, seeking out Kirby as his natural companion. Looking at the other's hand and again at his breast, the General suddenly exclaimed: "I know what all those things are that you wear. They're cameos."

"Cameos," exclaimed Aaron under his breath, his eyes returning to those of M. Veaudry.

Meanwhile Adele had been busily preparing for her last minute appeal to Kirby to remain. For the first time since her father's death she discarded mourning and in its place arrayed herself in a treasured evening gown of white satin purchased in Paris before the long shadow had descended upon men enough in the world? You know no lady would have anything to do with our kind. You got no business!"

"I don't hurt her if I only look at her, do I?" snapped Kirby, whirling upon his partner in sudden passion. "My God, if a man's been outside the walls for years you can't blame him for wanting to look at the flowers a minute if he gets into the garden some day. That can't harm them."

"Gene, do you know you're crazy yourself?" sadly pronounced Bunce, with a shake of the head. "They say them loonies do know it sometimes. And a nice, crazy turn you done me, too, tying me up here with folks like these," he added, with vehement reproach as full realization of his many wrongs overcame him. "You know I never had nothin' to say to no ladies, and as soon as I ever see one I choke up, and my neck gets hot and my ears git red. Interduced me as his secretary," again appealing to the invisible audience. "Waugh! Secretary! I'd make a h— of a secretary, wouldn't I? Come on, Gene. Pry yourself loose from all this darn foolishness before it's too late!"

"I've already given you my decision," interrupted Kirby, with some asperity. "But, Larkin, don't let my affairs detain you."

Bunce, after a farewell invocation of the heavens, resigned himself to the inevitable and, seating himself on the garden seat, proceeded to pick his teeth, while he fastened a plaintive and expectant eye on the distant house.

The partners sat in moody silence for some time until at length their reveries were interrupted by the advent of Judge Playdell, Mr. Randall and M. Veaudry. The judge had but returned from the steamboat landing, and as he approached the occupants of the garden seat his expression was of so serious a character that Bunce, ever on the lookout for trouble, now scented danger and, nudging his companion, jumped to his feet. But Kirby, though wary eyed, remained outwardly cool and entirely self-possessed and, embracing this heaven sent opportunity of further aggravating his partner, promptly introduced the latter as "my secretary."

"Colonel Moreau, sir," began the judge, somewhat astonished at the ferocity of Mr. Bunce's bow. "I have the most astonishing piece of news for you. What would you say if I told you that you had no right to be here at all, sir?"

As Playdell, preserving his stern demeanor, laid a hand on Kirby's shoulder his companions exchanged startled and significant glances, while Mr. Bunce grew apologetic and edged nearer his partner. All eyes were now on Kirby, but his expression of mild surprise and courteous interest never changed.

"Well, I reckon I'd have to say that the joke was on me, judge," he calmly replied.

Playdell began to laugh.

"Well, sir, according to rumor, you ain't here. According to rumor, you ain't anywhere, because you're dead."

To him it was a huge joke, and he roared until the tears mingled with his snowy mustache, all ignorant of the fact that he had propounded a literal truth; ignorant of the fact that his companions were still significantly eying each other and that Mr. Bunce was having exceeding difficulty with his collar. In fact, Kirby was the sole member of the interested audience who appeared to appreciate the full humor of the situation.

"When is my funeral?" he asked, with a smile. "I don't want to miss that."

the family fortunes. She was determined to look her best that night and in this feminine maneuver was enthusiastically supported by her aunt and Ann Playdell, who, if they did not suspect the cause, were entirely happy with the result, for they had long been urging the girl to discard the morbid preoccupation and settled misery which had threatened to sap vitality, embitter life; anxiously sought and hoped for some means of transforming her into the girl she once had been.

It now appeared as if their most optimistic desires had materialized, for it had been many a long day since Adele had evinced such anxious care and pride in her toilet, assumed the necessary duty with such lightsome heart and eager, feverish fingers. With pardonable vanity she closely scanned her reflection in the mirror, seeking a blemish and finding it not. Indeed, her toilet finished, the result more than justified her elaborate and careful preparation. As a finishing touch she plinned in her coiffure the white camellia which Kirby had discarded, and, conscious that she had done her very best in this important detail of her maneuver, she repaired to the veranda, accompanied by Mme. Davaez and Miss Playdell, suitably attired for the evening.

The moon had now risen, flooding the garden with its brilliant light and disclosing Mr. Randall and M. Veaudry standing a little apart from the others, their attitude eloquent of hostile suspicion. A pregnant silence had succeeded the General's exclamation, a silence broken at length by a tense whisper from Bunce.

"Come, Gene," he urged, catching the other's arm. "The boy has let it out. Look at that man's face," indicating Aaron Randall.

Kirby nodded imperceptibly while he calmly patted the General's head.

"Gentlemen," he said, bowing to the others, "I regret I am taking my leave. I only wait to say goodbye to Miss Randall."

"Who is it speaks of leaving?" suddenly demanded Adele's clear voice, and, turning, they all saw the ladies watching them from the veranda.

"Colonel Moreau," added the girl, coming down the steps and approaching Kirby, while Mme. Davaez and Ann Playdell echoed her protests, "you can't think of leaving. Dinner is served, and your place at table is next to me. Will you give me your arm?" smiling up into his eyes.

The full significance of her change of attire, the delicate but overwhelming compliment paid by the white camellia and the message it mutely conveyed, the great honor shown him, the overpowering appeal which this new, wondrous, resplendent Adele made to his already captive senses, wiped out in a breath all Kirby's hitherto adamant resolution and fixity of purpose, obliterated all thoughts of the future or care for his present danger.

"Now git to those horses," implored Bunce, sensing that his partner was in peril of yielding dominion to this feminine appeal. "Git to the horses, Gene."

"Hang the horses!" cried Kirby recklessly. "I'm going to dinner with a lady."

Throwing whip and hat on the garden seat, he bowed to Adele and offered his arm, while Larkin Bunce, inwardly raging at this new and sublime act of lunacy, turned helplessly to his sympathetic but invisible audience.

"Foley's Kidney Pills Have Cured Me!"

The above is a quotation from a letter written by H. M. Winkler, of Evansville, Ind. "I contracted a severe case of kidney trouble. My back gave out and pained me. I seemed to have lost all strength and ambition; was bothered with dizzy spells, my head would swim and necks float before my eyes. I took Foley's Kidney Pills regularly and am now perfectly well and feel like a new man. Foley's Kidney Pills have cured me." Gilbert's drug store.

Lexington Father Seeks Son.

A reward of $100 has been offered by Joseph Demma, of 574 West Scott street, Lexington, for the apprehension or information leading to the whereabouts of his 12 year old son, Frank Demma, who disappeared from home Friday July 15. Chief of Police Singery has received a letter from the father who is anxious to locate his son. He is described as weighing 70 pounds and being 4 feet and 5 inches in height. He has light hair and blue eyes.

Pickens Infant.

The two-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Pickens, of Littleville, died at 7:45 o'clock last night after a short illness of pneumonia.

The funeral was held at the residence at 1 o'clock this afternoon and burial was in the Morgan cemetery.

—Mrs. J. A. Konetzka left last night for Chicago, where she was called to attend the bedside of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Harris, and the granddaughter, Elinor Harris.

Both Mrs. Harris and little daughter are seriously ill.

Old Man Takes Long Ride.

With no other business before him than the payment of his state and county taxes, Finis R. Rogers, of the extreme western part of this county, rode a mule twenty miles to town Saturday. Mr. Rogers is 86 years of age, but his vitality is wonderful. He was at the sheriff's office at 8 o'clock and when he left for home he said he would get there in time for dinner.—Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

When a man proposes to a woman she can look just as innocent as thought she wasn't expecting it.

A Spartan Father.

Recently a first-year high school pupil handed her history teacher what she evidently considered an exhaustive and final study of Lacedaemonian customs. In it she stated that one Spartan habit of strengthening youth was to compel the boys to sleep always on beds of thistles.

The incident reminds one of a story that is told of one of the Camerons of Lochiel.

The chief, when bivouacking with his son in the snow, noticed that the lad had rolled up a snowball to make a pillow. He thereupon rose and kicked it away, saying sternly, "No effeminacy, boy."—Youth's Companion.
